Madigan Indicted

Former House Speaker Michael J. Madigan was indicted on federal racketeering and bribery charges Wednesday along with his long-time consigliere Mike McClain. The charges were the latest in an ongoing investigation by the U.S. Attorney of utility Commonwealth Edison, but the 22-count indictment went beyond the ComEd bribery scheme to include charges that Madigan provided political favors in exchange for business for his law firm.

The investigation of Madigan first became public in July 2020, when the U.S. Attorney's Office announced it had reached an agreement with ComEd, the largest utility in Illinois, to end an ongoing federal investigation of the company. The federal government's investigation centered on the utility's use of hiring, contracts and other practices intended to gain favor with the Speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives in exchange for favorable consideration of legislation to benefit the company valued at $150 million. ComEd was charged with one count of bribery under a deferred prosecution agreement that included a fine of $200 million and a pledge to cooperate with the investigation.

In addition to charges related to ComEd, the indictment detailed a scheme to help a former Chicago Alderman be appointed to a state board or commission in exchange for directing potential clients to his property tax practice, and a similar plan to pass land transfer legislation in exchange for legal work related to the development. The former Speaker has denied the charges through his attorney.

Pritzker Ends Mask Mandate

Governor JB Pritzker ended the state's mandate for masks in school this Monday, the same day that he had previously set for the mandate to end in places of business and other locations. Prior to the announcement, the Illinois Supreme Court said they would not overturn the circuit and appellate court rulings against the school mask mandate, effectively ending the Governor's authority to require face coverings.

In a related development, House Speaker Chris Welch apparently negotiated a détente with House Republicans over the continued mask requirement, ending several days of protests and remote voting by members who oppose the House face-covering rule. Welch is allowing fifty percent capacity in the House Gallery and allowing pages and reporters access to the House floor. The Speaker asked his Republican colleagues for additional time to refine House Covid-19 protocols in light of decreasing positivity and hospitalization rates. The Senate was not in session this week and has not indicated if their procedures will change going forward.

Ezike to Step Down

Dr. Ngozi Ezike announced this week that she would resign her position as Director of the Illinois Department of Public Health effective March 14, 2022. Ezike was the face of the state's response to the Covid-19 pandemic, speaking alongside Governor JB Pritzker at sometimes daily press conferences providing residents with information regarding the outbreak and state mitigations. Ezike said she is stepping down to spend more time with her family. Deputy Director Amaal Tokars will serve as the interim director until Pritzker names a replacement.
